

Wallpapers from past

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

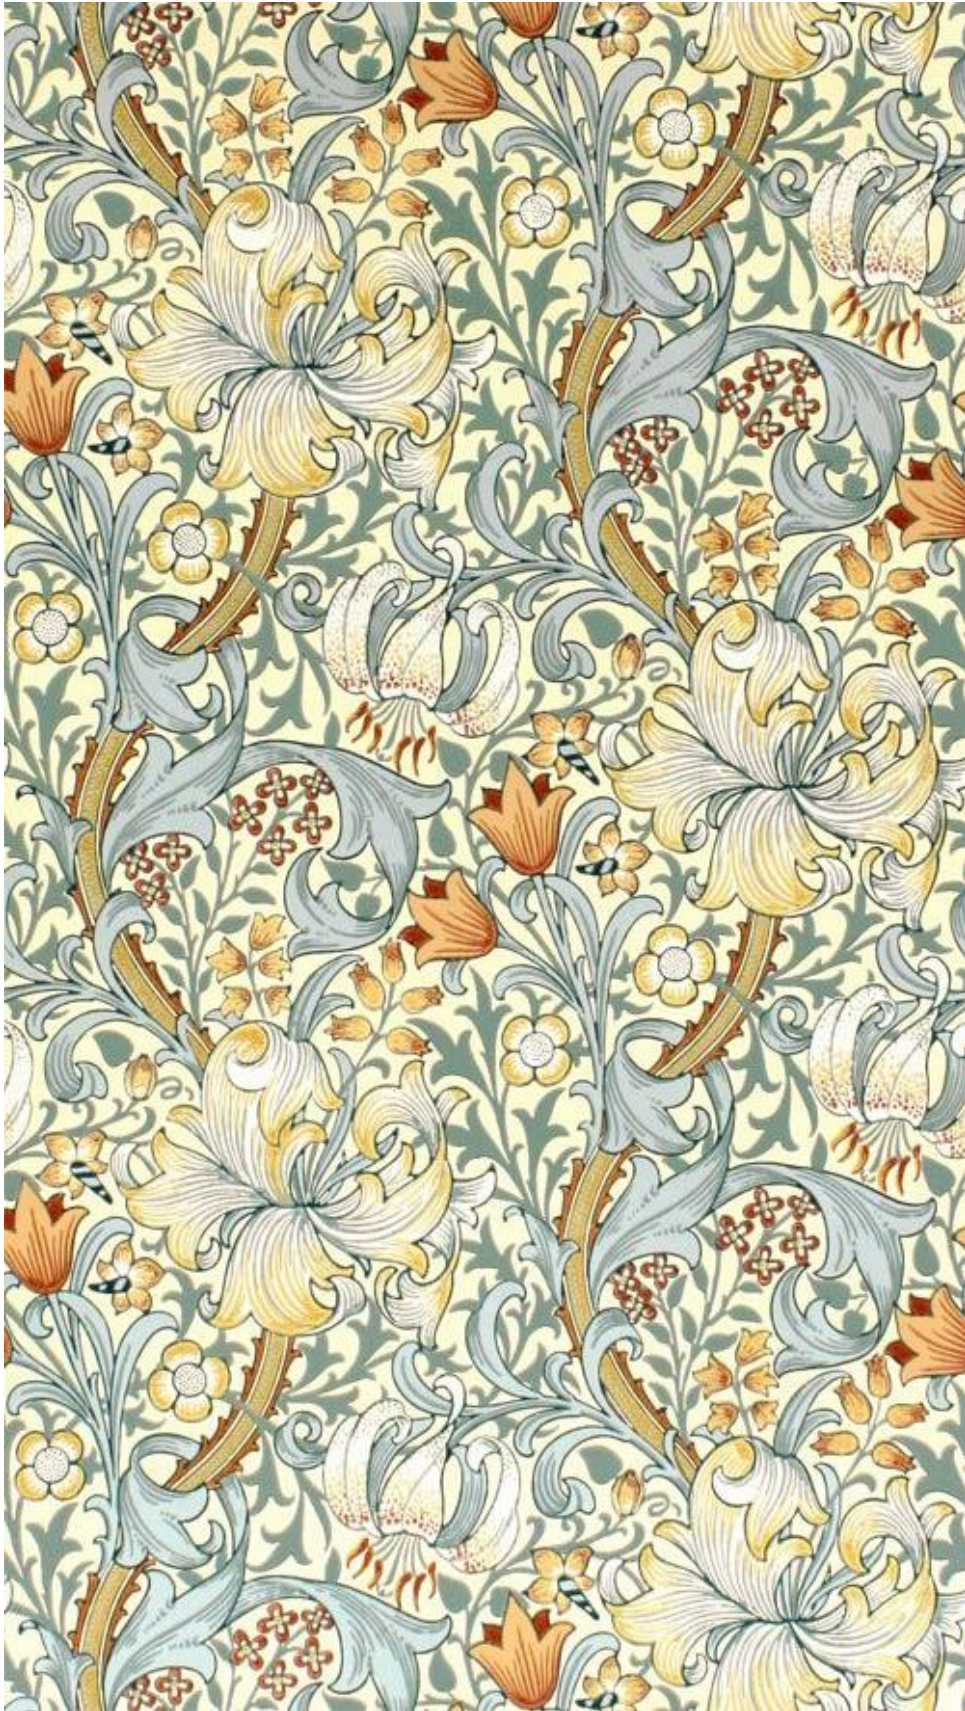

Wallpapers from past

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Wallpapers from past

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

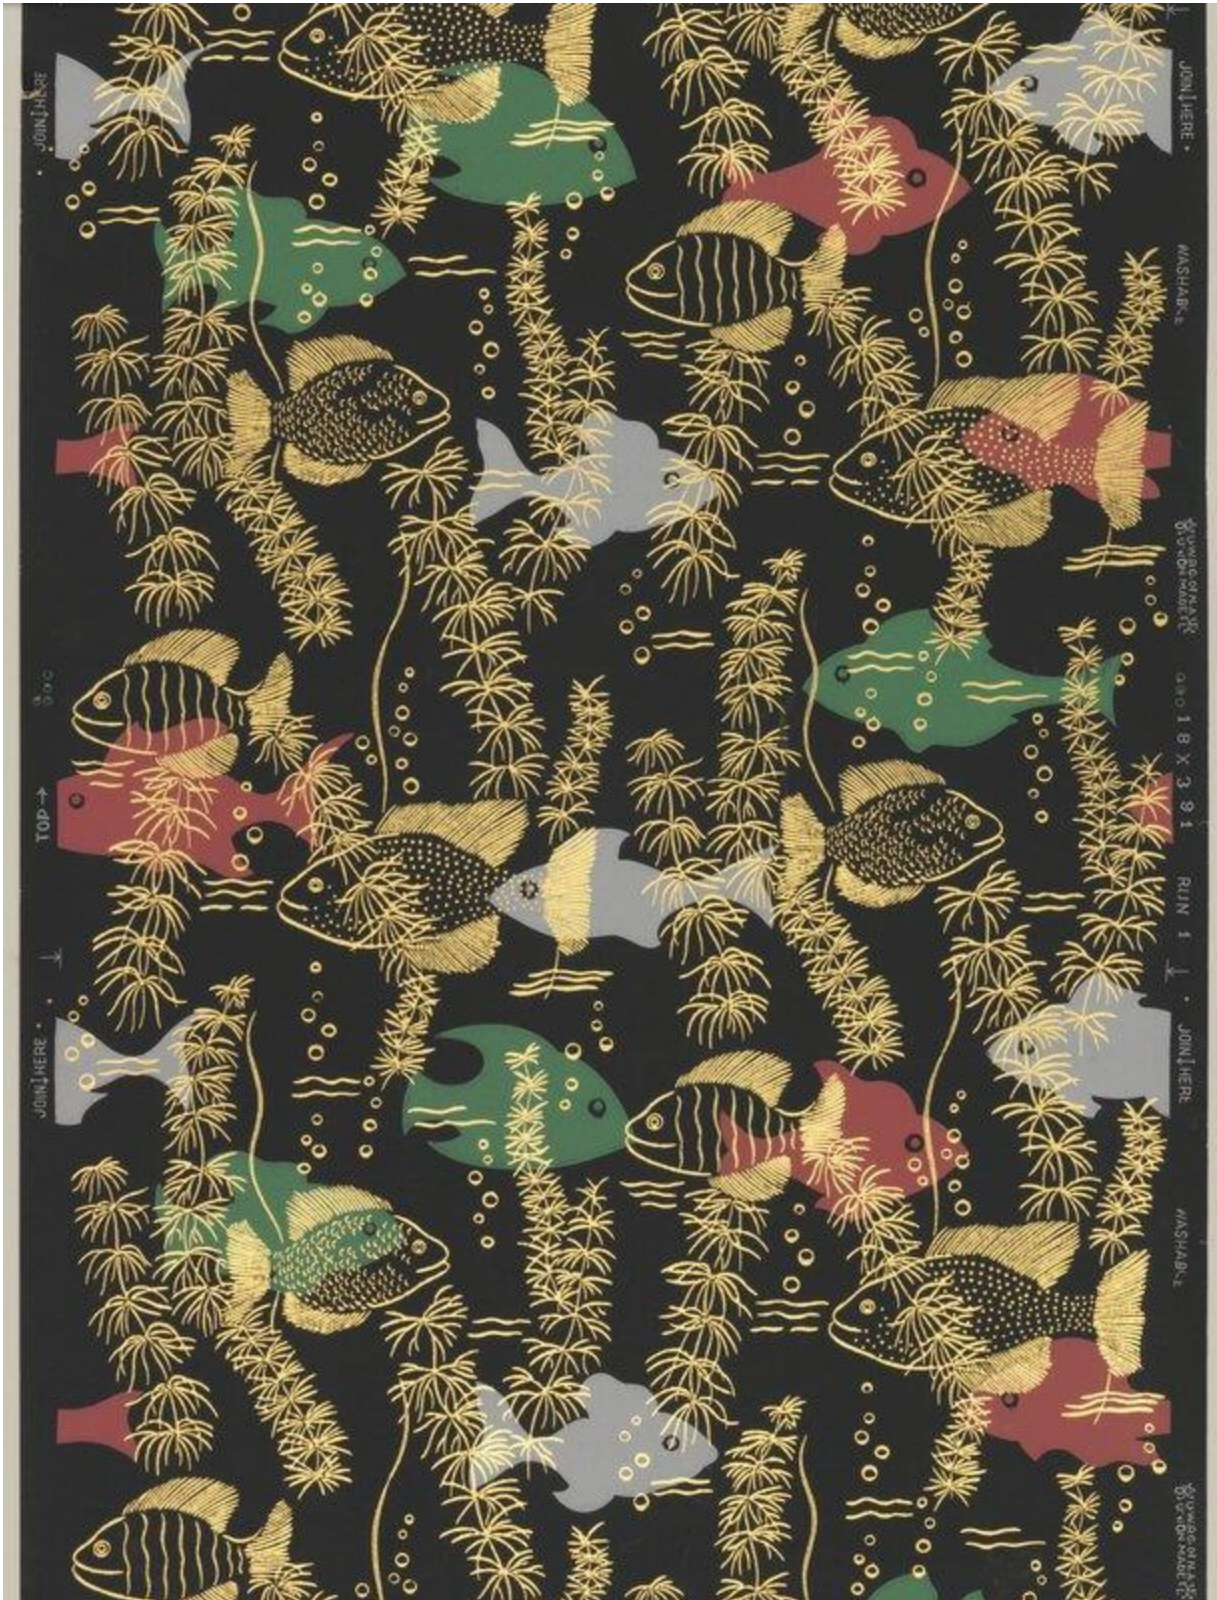

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

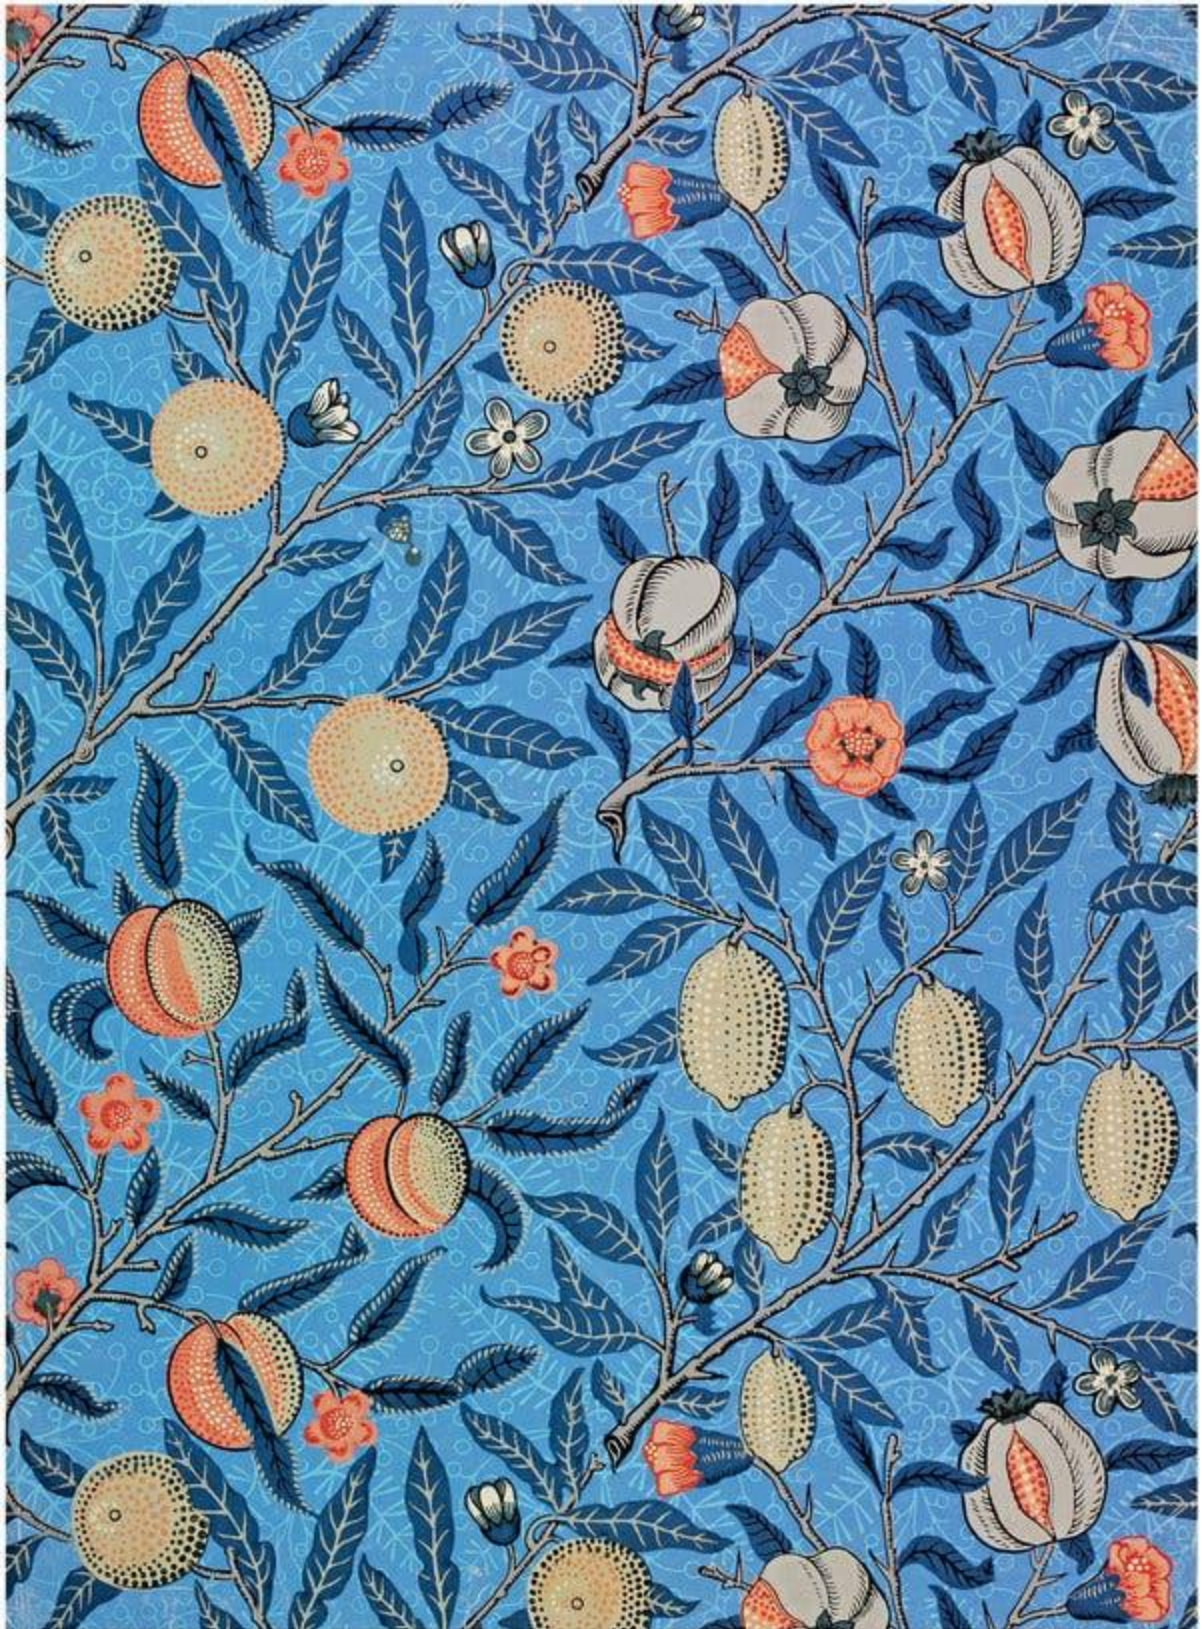

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

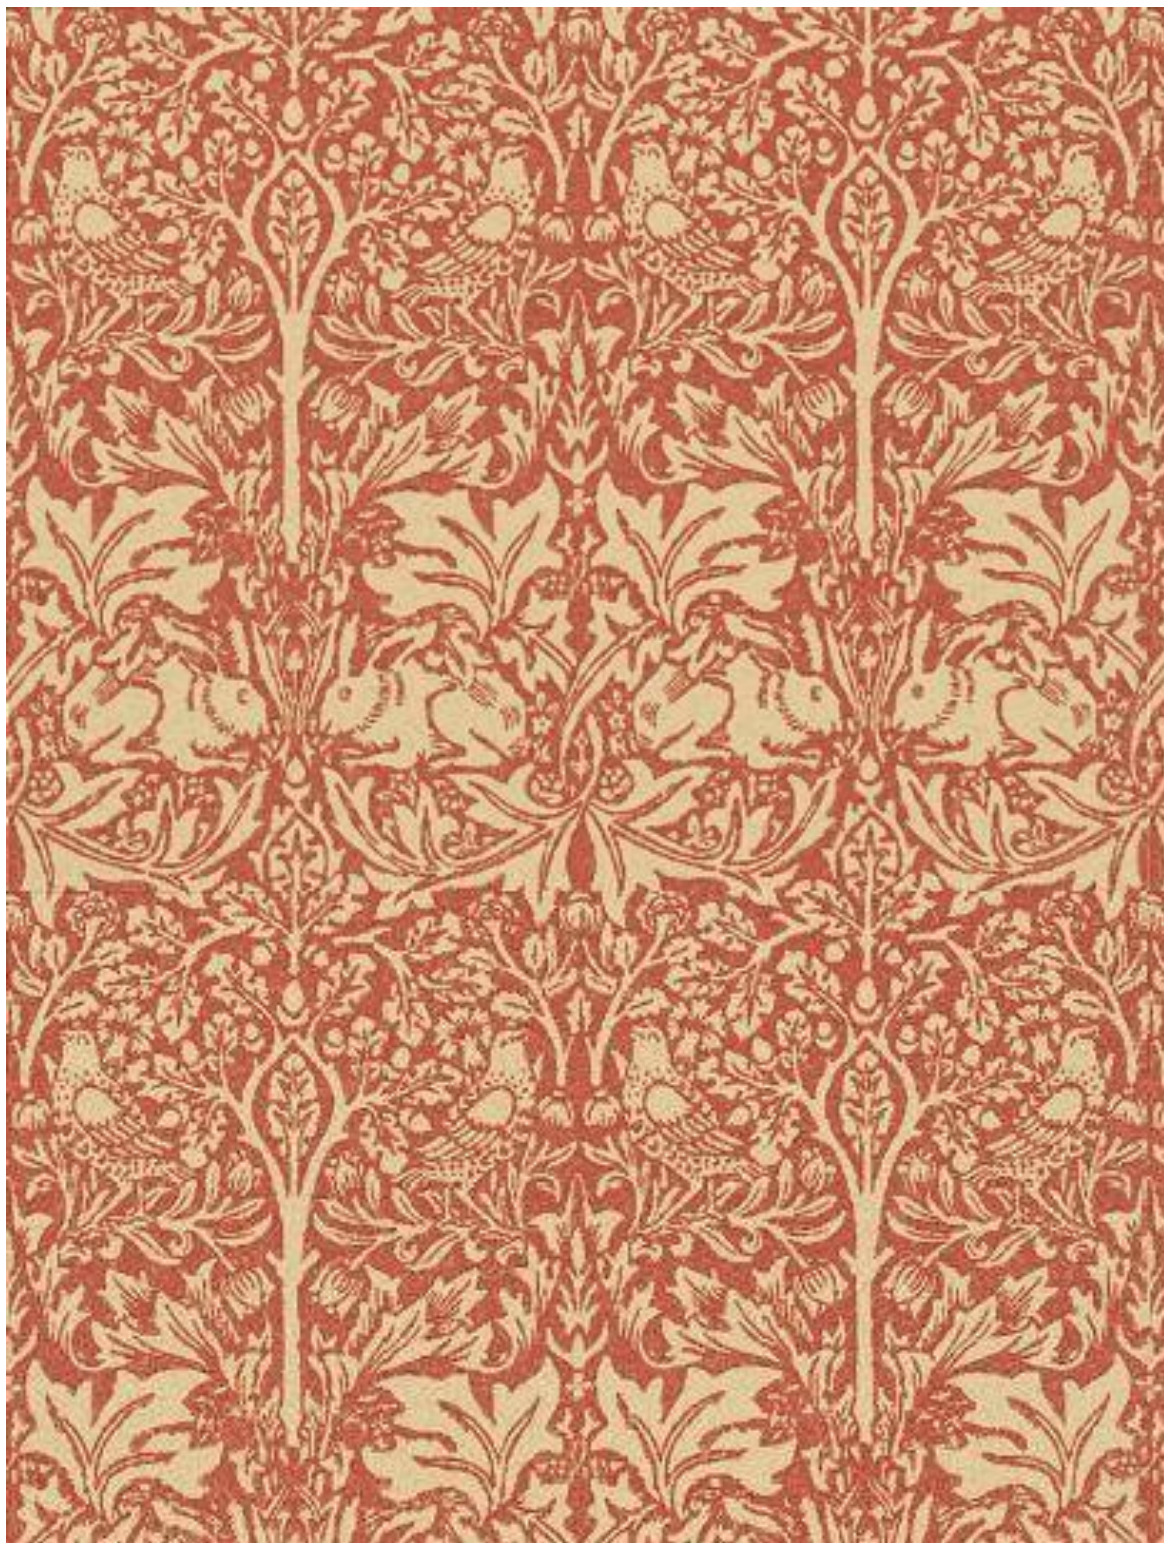

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

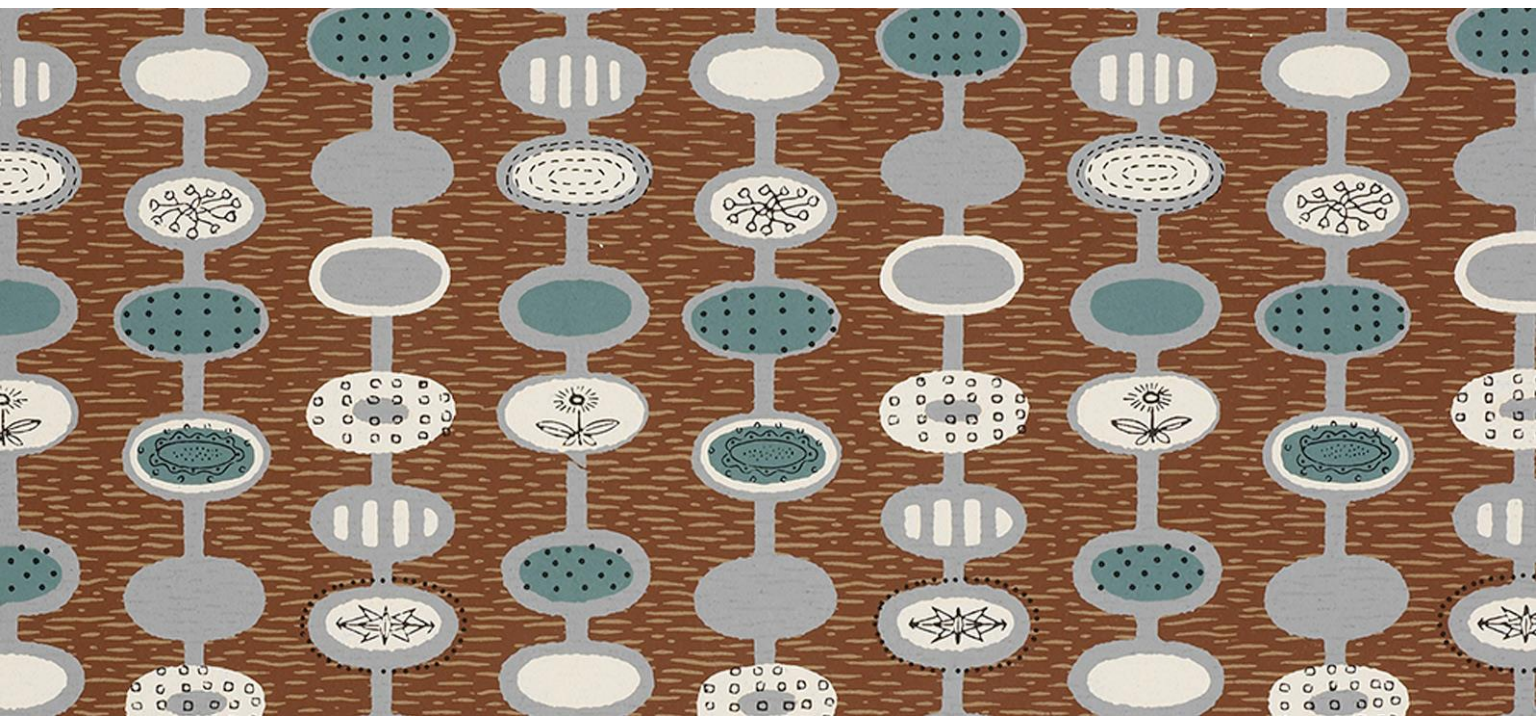

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

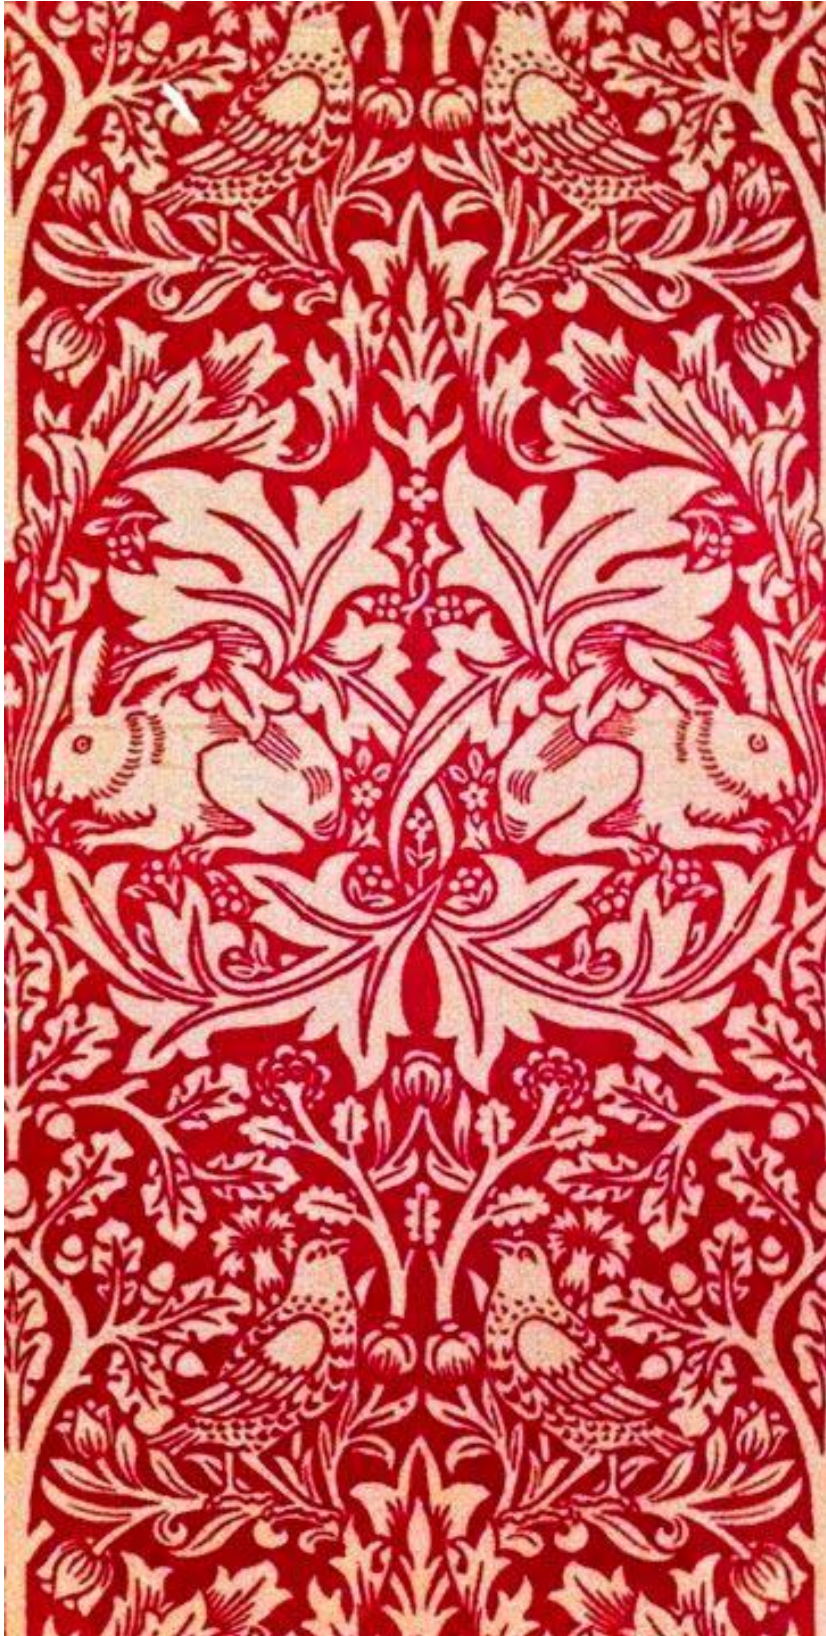

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Wallpapers from past

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Getting ready for wallpapers of today

Sources

·Victoria and Albert Museum (V&A), London: The V&A houses a vast collection of wallpapers, showcasing designs from the 16th century to contemporary works. Their online collection provides access to numerous wallpaper samples and related artifacts.

·Wallpaper History Society: Dedicated to the study and preservation of wallpaper history, this society offers resources, publications, and events focused on the social history and production of wallpapers.

·Whitworth Art Gallery, Manchester: Part of the University of Manchester, the Whitworth Gallery holds a significant collection of historic wallpapers, emphasizing the evolution of design and technique.

·Cooper Hewitt, Smithsonian Design Museum, New York: This museum features a digital database of wallpaper designs, highlighting patterns from various periods and styles.

·The William Morris Society: Focusing on the works of William Morris, the society maintains an archive of Morris & Co. patterns, reflecting the Arts and Crafts movement's influence on wallpaper design.

·Metropolitan Museum of Art (Met), New York: The Met's collection includes wallpapers from different historical periods, offering insights into design trends and cultural influences.

Early info

Getting ready for my Free(k) online webinar this December. Join me as I unveil a detailed workflow to unlock the full potential of Artificial Intelligence for your projects. Focusing entirely on innovative wallcoverings – stay tuned and follow me for ongoing details.

Getting ready for wallpapers of today